SOUND PINPOINTED AS CAUSE OF BLOOD SPOTS IN EGGS

As much as 10 percent of the annual commercial egg production is downgraded because of blood spots, says Lewis Wesley, poultry specialist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Many colleges have studied this problem to find the cause of blood spots and how to reduce their incidence. Recent work by scientists at Michigan State throws more light on this subject, says Wesley.

They found that, contrary to common belief, physical disturbance of commercial layers has no effect on the incidence of blood spots in eggs. Automobiles, dogs, strange people, or other common occurrences on the farm did not raise the number of blood spots found in eggs. However, sounds do have an effect.

It was found that producers stop providing 24 hours of light or very short intermittent light periods to their flock.

Father Darkleaf

by c. h. r.

Everyone knows that Tim Trent can sell good food. But, did you know, he headed a Lions Club committee which sold 1,410 pounds of fruit cake, during the recent holiday season! Oh, boy.

My friend, Fred Smith, persuaded me to purchase a bag of bird seed. O. K. I didn't know what to do with the "stuff, so I just poured it out on the front sidewalk. This morning, when I came home for breakfast and got back in the car, I noticed that all the bird food was gone — and when I started the motor, lo and behold, there were two birds seated on the steering whel of the car. Gee! They just may have come back for another meal.

To "mess around" with machinery is a vexing chore, but one must accept the fact that where you have a mass of motors and gears and screws, nuts and bolts, and thiss and thatta — you must spend a lot of time trying to get it all working smoothly. We have to do just that. Yesterday, for example one of our motors died out. Fortunately, our friend, Dick Bass found the trouble and got it going within seconds. But my point if I might make it, is that we live in a mechanical age, and most of our working hours are spent in trying to keep machines in operation. But—when you get a job you wiggle around, somehow, to get it done!

Mother Brightleaf and I hope to "get out of town" tomorrow morning for a brief vacation. We do not know our destination. Who is to say—but is the Spanish phrase Quien sabe?) Ah yes, but somewhere along the road, we will find a happy spot, and stop and relax and maybe I can put on my bathing suit and we will come back to tell you about it. And, meanwhile, we are happy about it all, because we have a good and capable crew to see that you get a fine newspaper next week. That will not worry us! So, take it easy folks, we will be back at the desk and everything will be "in the groove" until then!

Rocks

Rocks, Jan. 22.- Another snow came last week.

PAMPLIN TAXES TO BE RAISED

The Town of Pamplin is asking a tax increase, it an announcement published today.

However, Pamplin has had a low tax rate in its years of incorporation, and the increase is set at from fifty cents to seventy-five cents per $100.00 valuation.

Stating that increased cost of operating and maintaining essential services, made more revenue necessary, the Pamplin Town Council asked for the tax increase.

Also, the minimum charge for town merchant's licenses would be increased from $1.00 to $5.00

F.H.A. LOAN PROGRAM

A great deal of interest is being shown in local counties in the recently expanded Farmers Home Administration's rural housing loan program.

These loans are available to qualified farm owners and owners of nonfarm tracts in rural areas and small rural communities with populations of not more than 2,500. Loans are made to applicants unable to finance their needs with their own resources or with credit from other sources.

Funds may be used to finance adequate but modest rural dwellings and essential farm service buildings. These loans are repayable over a maximum period of 33 years at 4 percent interest per year on the unpaid principal.

The agency also loans for farm buying and developing family farms, and home operating expenses, water development and soil conservation and developing watershed projects.

Application for these services may be made at the Farmers Home Administration office located at Farmville. Hunter P. Evans is County Supervisor. Mr. Evans also has part-time office hours at Appomattox at the ASC office on Tuesday morning from 9:00 to 9:30 A. M.

New Arthritis Test Developed By March of Dimes Research

To determine whether or not she has rheumatoid arthritis, Barbara Singleton, 10, gives blood sample to medical technician at March of Dimes-supported clinic. Each year 20,000 children are enlisted

A new and sensitive blood test for diagnosing rheumatoid arthritis in children was one of the medical achievements of 1961 highlighted by The National Foundation in a year-end review of progress by March of Dimes-supported scientists.

The report, by Dr. Thomas M. Rivers, vice president for medical affairs of The Foundation, cited accomplishments related to birth defects, virus diseases, polio and genetics as well as arthritis.

Dr. Rivers also noted that 1961 will be memorable for the start of the licensing by the U.S. Government of the first of Salk oral polio vaccine which, like the Salk Shot, was developed with the March of Dimes.

The new vaccine, a live virus preparation, is given by mouth on sugar cube. Results of tests in Dallas in two different areas showed positive immunity in 100 per cent of children with rheumatoid arthritis, 98% resulting, other tests reportedly in use seldom pinpoint the disease in more than 20 per cent of youngsters known to have it, according to Dr. Rivers.

Dr. Rivers pointed out that few people realize how very serious rheumatoid arthritis can be in children, or how common it is among them. It is estimated that there are about 30,000 children under 15 in the U.S. who have it, many of whom are severely crippled, he said.

It is also suspected many other youngsters may have the disease, with perhaps only minor or vague pains and no clear-cut symptoms to label arthritis as the culprit.

The arthritis test, which is particularly sensitive in detecting an unusual blood factor frequently found in persons with rheumatoid arthritis, may fill its greatest role in uncovering undiagnosed rheumatic disease in children.

This could be vitally important, because the earlier diagnosis is made and treatment started, the better the chances for prevention of disability in young victims of the disease.

A second scientific achievement highlighted in The Foundation's year-end report was a special field study which indicated that a great many birth defects are not detectable in early life but may remain hidden until infants reach the age of one or two.

This report was made by a research team headed by Dr. Frank R. Lock of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Among the other developments singled out in the March of Dimes research progress report were the following:

1. Dr. Joseph L. Melnick of Baylor University has come up with two chemical discoveries that promise major improvements in the manufacture of oral polio vaccines. It had previously been necessary to keep such vaccines in deep freeze units, but a new chemical treatment has developed viruses which remain potent for as long as a month. The treatment also produces a vaccine that is more stable virucidal during all stages of preparation.

2. Additional evidence that one of the intestinal viruses may also cause an infectious heart disease, sometimes fatal in infants, has been added by Dr. George Dennis, of the researchers at the University of Saskatchewan.
